In order to keep the "case" count high and the plandemic moving right along, government officials in Alberta, Canada, are now counting all illnesses as "covid" in order to justify all the tyranny.

In an announcement, Alberta Chief Health Officer Deena Hinshaw explained that people who test "negative" for the Wuhan coronavirus (Covid-19), as well as people who never get tested at all but who show respiratory symptoms of any kind, will be automatically added to the official case count that the government relays to the media.

> "So, we do have that framework where schools, if they see that there are an increased number of children who are ill because of respiratory illness, or teachers or staff, they can work with Alberta Health Services," Hinshaw revealed.

> "And in some ways, that is adding an additional layer of protection because if individuals choose to not get tested for covid but are home with an illness, they're now counted in the list as being part of that 'outbreak.'"

Words like "outbreak" really get the people going, even if they are completely fictitious, so this approach is likely to keep the Branch Covidians scared as can be and ready to get their next Biden Booster shot the moment it becomes available.

> "So, it's less dependent on needing a test to be a part of identifying where there is an issue," Hinshaw added, indicating that the government is making everything up on the fly to push an agenda.

> "We are, as I mentioned, working with education to determine if there are any adjustments that need to be made to this framework. But there are no other settings right now aside from continuing care and acute care at locations where there's a significant risk of transmission and severe outcomes."

Covidism is the real virus

As it turns out, most new "cases" of the Chinese Virus are fictitious, even outside of Canada. Here in the United States, every reported "surge" or "outbreak" is completely made up to scare people into compliance.

At least half of all new cases are either asymptomatic or erroneous, a recent study found. The same is true about hospitalizations, which are largely being manufactured to create the illusion that sickness is spreading like wildfire.

The disease that threatens us all is the religion of Covidism, and Hinshaw is one of its high priestesses. Watch below as she runs through a ridiculous masking and hand sanitizing ritual before speaking to the press:

> "If there should be an outbreak in those settings, we are ensuring that follow-up takes place to mitigate and to manage outbreaks," Hinshaw added in a statement.

> "However, in schools, again we are taking the approach that an illness that fits that definition of respiratory illness is treated the same way whether it's someone who is diagnosed with covid or not."

Meanwhile, India is seeing the fewest real-life cases of illness because of its use of ivermectin as opposed to "vaccines." Conversely, Israel is seeing a massive spike in disease thanks to the country now being about 80 percent vaccinated with more "booster" shots soon on the way.

> "No one in their right mind believes you clowns anymore," wrote one commenter at Citizen Free Press about Hinshaw and her fellow Branch Covidians.

> "It has nothing to do with a virus and has never had anything to do with the virus," wrote another. "This is all orchestrated to take our rights away and push us towards a socialist 'utopia' that most of us do not want."
