

Crusader Tony Blair. “Smooth Transition” from War Criminal to “Peace Envoy”

Man of Faith: Crusader Blair’s Vision: Eternal War: Iran and Syria Next? (Part Two.)

By Felicity Arbuthnot

Global Research, September 18, 2011
18 September 2011

Region: Europe

Theme: Crimes against Humanity, US NATO War Agenda

“The louder he talked of his honour, the faster we counted our spoons.” (Ralph Waldo Emerson, 1803-1882.)

It is always instructive to re-visit Blair-world (when the blood pressure can take it) hindsight, as ever, always illuminating.

His seemingly delusional media-fest in the run up to the tenth anniversary 9/11, commemorated as apparently the only terrible tragedy ever to afflict a nation anywhere on earth, included his apocalyptic certainty that: “The threat to our way of life, the values we hold and our peace and prosperity remains ... it will take a generation to change hearts and minds and make the fanatics an irrelevance.” (i)

The decade old re-run sounded no less scarily megalomaniacal than it did something very similar was delivered by his pal, US President and fellow evangelical fundamentalist, in 2001.

In January last year, the now “Middle East Peace Envoy”, was “smuggled in and out of the Chilcot Inquiry” on Iraq, a country now largely ruined, mired in violence and turmoil, whose mass graves since 2003, embrace up to one and a half million of the invasion’s victims.

Between furtive sneakings in and out, Blair declared that creating Iraq’s massacres mounds and river of blood, it was the: “right decision.”

He had: “Responsibility but not regret for removing Saddam Hussein ...I believe he threatened not just the region, but the world.” Somewhat at odds with a regime proved to have no meaningful weapons, nil long range anything, and whose neighbours said repeatedly, prior to the invasion, Iraq posed them no threat. Indeed, the then CIA Director, George Tenet, testified before US Congress firmly endorsing the same view, seven months before 9/11.(ii)

Further, Saddam had a history of killing millions of his own people and regularly breached UN Resolutions, said the man who, between invasion and his collusion in continuing the embargo, and a decade of US/UK bombing, may carry a weighty share of responsibility for perhaps three million Iraqi deaths. None of which quite complied with the UN’s fine, founding stated ideals.

The woeful mass graves from Saddam's era are, of course, mainly from the Iran-Iraq war's chilling toll, the West backing Iraq, making profits of particular obscenity by arming both sides. Then the 32 nation US-led, onslaught after the 1991 Kuwait invasion, for which the US Ambassador to Iraq gave the green light.

The Iraqi people had to be saved from Iraq's terrible weapons, Blair asserted, omitting that they were found not to exist. Perhaps he still has fantasy friends too.

No mention that they were "saved" by real, not imaginary, weapons of mass destruction: depleted uranium, white phosphorous, bunker busters, napalm, cluster bombs and munitions, with many, as yet unconfirmed reports, that conventional nuclear weapons may also have been used.(iii)

The former Iraqi regime, of course, accounted its for its unheld weapons in the massive 12,800 page Report to the UN in December 2002. Successive Israeli governments have never admitted to having, allegedly, the world's fifth largest nuclear arsenal, and have seemingly ignored 66 UN Resolutions. A government which hosts Blair on an ongoing basis, about whose pretty spectacular legal shortcomings he is apparently supremely unconcerned.

Similar pressure as on Iraq, should now be placed on Iran, he told the Inquiry - who also deny having nuclear weapons and has allowed UN Inspectors unfettered access.

In another delusional or amnesic moment, he said a deadly threat had been Iraq's looming nuclear arms race with Iran. Iraq and Iran had , in fact, been edging cautiously towards conciliation for some years before the invasion.

In context, in April 2003, the New York Times' Judith Miller, an invasion enthusiast second to few, seemingly thinking she had found evidence of atrocities in Basra, with nearly five hundred coffins, neatly piled in a warehouse, had to report that the leader of the US Army's Criminal Investigation Division's task force, Chief Warrant Officer Dan Walters stated, that from extensive documents, Iraqis had apparently been processing the remains and preparing to exchange them with Iran.

"Their wounds were consistent with combat deaths, not executions," said Mr Walters "So far," he added, "there are no indications that war crimes were committed here."(iv) No doubt quite a blow to Ms Miller.

The careful diplomacy between Iraq and Iran, was, also ironically strengthened by the Clinton doctrine of "dual containment"(v) bringing them closer together against further external threats. Blair, however, insisted on the looming threat of a nuclear arms race with Iran, had Saddam remained. The matter of legality, apparently, a far away place of which nothing was known.

He told the Inquiry he agreed to military action with George W. Bush immediately after 9/11. Further: "I never regarded September 11th as an attack on America, I regarded it as an attack on us." What did he have for breakfast?

He reaffirmed his commitment to the attack on Iraq at George Bush's ranch in April 2002, believing "beyond doubt" the claims in the now notorious fiction in the long discredited dossier of September 2002.

Before his appearance at the Inquiry, he had given an interview with the BBC, when he was asked: "If you had known then that there were no WMDs, would you still have gone on?" He replied: "I would still have thought it right to remove him [Saddam Hussein]"(vi)

Apart from illegality of enormity, the attack on Iraq and Blair's linkage of Iraq to the 11th September, must join history's most extraordinary non-sequiturs. Perhaps imaginary friends advise him, as well.

He and Bush had agreed, he continued, that Saddam Hussein had refused to comply with UN demands, which justified their action. Life would have been: "a lot easier", with UN backing of course, but as ever, he knew he was right.

When Sir Lawrence Freedman said, that in January 2007 alone, excess Iraq deaths, were 2,807: " ... shocking figures and getting worse every year", perhaps there was a moment of discomfort, but it was: " ... Al Qaeda and Iran that really caused this mission to very nearly fail." Was there really no comprehension that "external elements", he cited, did not destabilize and murder in Iraq before the invasion? Iraq's borders were near inviolate, the British and Americans threw them wide open to all comers.

The fault was, further incredibly, that they had not planned for the " ... absence of a functioning civil service infrastructure." Iraq, of course, had a rigidly efficient civil service, Germanic in its meticulousness. The invasion's forces comprehensively destroyed, or stole and shipped, all records, from every Ministry. The US "Viceroy" Bremer fired all civil servants - along with police force, and every bureaucratic arm needed to keep a State functioning. As Pol Pot, a "Year Zero", created at every level, including mortality: Pol Pot regime, lower estimate 1,700,000 some Iraq ones, 1,500,000.

Peace Envoy Blair was, he said shocked by pictures of abuse at Abu Ghraib - conscience, humanity at last? No chance. Because they were a: "propaganda victory" for the enemy.

Over the years, many medical professionals have pondered on Tony Blair's psychological profile. A recent one has been Narcissistic Personality Disorder. In addition to a belief in being superior to other, some indications are:

- Self centered and boastful
- Seek constant attention and admiration
- Exaggerate talents and achievements
- Might take advantage of others to achieve their goals
- Expectation that others will go along with what she or he wants
- Inability to recognize or identify the feelings or needs of others
- Arrogant behaviour or attitude (vii)

For all the professional analysis of what strange force drives Charles Anthony Lyndon Blair, the most apt one for this writer, is still that of the old priest, at Iraq's ancient St Mathew's Monastery - the Lourdes of the Middle East - on Mount Maqloub, above the plains of Nineveh, in northern Iraq.

Pre-invasion, he talked of the plight of the villagers below, as we stood, looking down over the tiny villages on the great plains below. Sanctions had decimated their pastoral existence; families, their sheep, goats, children shepherding, were routinely killed by British and American planes, patrolling yesterday's "humanitarian", "no-fly zone."

"Every day", he said: "There are new widows, new widowers, new orphans, lost children. Please, when you go home, tell your Mr Tony Blair, he is a very, very, bad man."

Felicity Arbuthnot is a Global Research's Human Rights Correspondent based in London.

Notes

* <http://www.globalresearch.ca/index.php?context=va&aid=26542>

i.

<http://www.mirror.co.uk/news/top-stories/2011/09/09/tony-blair-warns-war-on-terror-is-far-from-over-in-exclusive-interview-with-mirror-115875-23406471/>

ii. <http://www.scoop.co.nz/stories/HL0306/S00211.htm>

iii.

http://docs.google.com/viewer?a=v&q=cache:_FRbwHGlqr0J:www.brussellstribunal.org/pdf/DU-Azzawi2.pdf+weapons+used+in+the+invasion+of+Iraq&hl=en&gl=uk&pid=bl&srcid=ADGEEsg2urYIx-o5SSGrNPNOdge-n9DpeW_8sDI_AbKHzz8s8InnPUZyJX5YYazgH_rwj2ULa9c8m5aqk5gii

iv. <http://www.commondreams.org/headlines03/0407-08.htm>

v.

<http://www.foreignaffairs.com/articles/49686/f-gregory-gause-iii/the-illogic-of-dual-containment>

vi. <http://www.guardian.co.uk/uk/2009/dec/12/tony-blair-iraq-chilcot-inquiry> (BBC link is removed.)

vii

http://my.clevelandclinic.org/disorders/personality_disorders/hic_narcissistic_personality_disorder.aspx

Inquiry

summary:

<http://www.mirror.co.uk/news/top-stories/2010/01/29/tony-blair-tells-iraq-inquiry-i-d-do-it-again-115875-22005313/>

Chilcot Inquiry: <http://www.iraqinquiry.org.uk/>

Light relief: Put yourself in to Tony Blair's shoes and take the Narcissistic Personality Test. Enter "Male, age 58" and see how you/he score:

<http://psychcentral.com/quizzes/narcissistic.htm>

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Felicity Arbuthnot

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca