

Currency War starts against Belarus

By Global Research

Global Research, May 28, 2011

Telegraf \(Belarus\) 25 May 2011

Region: Europe, Russia and FSU

Theme: Global Economy

Following the devaluation of the Belarusian ruble almost all foreign banks in neighboring countries have ceased to quote the national currency of Belarus. For example, such Latvian banks as Citadele Banka, Baltikums Banka, Trasta komercbanka, Latvijas Biznesa Banka don't quote Belarusian rubles. The neighboring countries could previously exchange the Belarusian rubles into other currencies.

Thus, the Latvian Rietumu Banka, which was still ready to carry out foreign exchange transactions with non-cash Belarusian rubles at the rate of Br7.000 per dollar (€9.882) on Monday, May 23, it has stopped any transactions both with cash and non-cash Belarusian rubles since May 24.

Those few banks that are still willing to sell Belarusian rubles, provided for their demand, set substantially overvalued rates, compared with the National Bank official rate.

Thus, the Latvian SEB banka is ready to sell dollars at the rate of Br9.110 – Br9.190 per dollar. The bank's dollar purchase price is equal to Br3.956.35 on May 25.

In this case, May 25, Belarus's National Bank official rate is Br4.931 per dollar, Br6.933.48 per euro.

Meanwhile, following the devaluation of the Belarusian ruble, its official rate has appreciated by almost 54% in neighboring Russia. If the cost of Br10 thousand, set by the Central Bank of Russia on May 23, was slightly more than RUB88.7 the day before the devaluation, the rate dropped by almost 54% to RUB57.6 for Br10 thousand after the devaluation on May 25. Meanwhile, according to available information, the majority of Russian banks, as well as in neighboring Latvia, refuses to quote the Belarusian currency.

Belarusian ruble official rate in the Ukraine, according to statistics from the National Bank of the Ukraine, has appreciated by 56.2% after the devaluation. Nevertheless, most commercial banks don't quote the national currency of Belarus as well.

As Telegraf previously reported, May 24, National Bank of Belarus held ruble devaluation, as well as restored rate fixing restriction. Now FX limiting values for purchase-and-sale on both the OTC and cash market can only + / -2% deviate from the rate of National Bank (conversion – from the cross-rate, based on official rate of the Belarusian ruble to the respective currencies). Following the devaluation, Belarus's commercial banks adjusted rates for the maximum allowable level.

The original source of this article is Telegraf \(Belarus\)

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Global Research

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca