

Cut Through the Spin: Support Independent Media

By Global Research and Global Research

Global Research, November 27, 2012

While most of the world focuses on America's military posturing against Iran and China, or Israel's occupation of the Palestinians, there are still many other important and ongoing stories involving social movements, the environment, the Congo... the list goes on. Global Research works to bring all of these important matters to the attention of our valued readers.

We will continue to try to expand our coverage of global events. In doing so, we do not receive foundation money or any form of government or corporate funding, which is how we maintain our independence and integrity.

This means that we need your support in whatever way you can provide it to increase the scope of our coverage and reach the broadest possible readership. There are different ways you can show your support: your help can be financial; it can be through re-posting our material and articles on social media pages or on your blogs, or forwarding them to your friends, family, and colleagues. As much as possible, we urge our readers to generously support Global Research and we extend our sincere thanks for your ongoing support. Every amount, great or small, helps us with our projects.

As the war machine tries to gain strength, Global Research is working to cut through the political and corporate spin pumped out by mainstream media. Your support allows us to keep fighting for the truth. We need you to keep reading, stay aware, share with others, and help us be a force for change.
