Longstanding US/Israeli imperial partnership overrides how both leaders feel about each other – undisguised loathing no matter how they tried hiding it Monday in a media photo op. Business as usual alone matters.

The New York Times supports what demands condemnation. It said Monday's meeting "turn(ed) the page on a season of poisonous relations... focus(ing) on collaboration over acrimony."

Both leaders "highlight(ed) their shared goals of confronting Iranian misbehavior, countering terrorism, bolstering Israel's security and strategizing over the crisis in Syria."

Their shared goals include endless regional wars, creating a permanent environment of instability and chaos, prioritizing state-sponsored terrorism, denying Palestinians their fundamental rights, and blaming others for their high crimes

Netanyahu called Monday's meeting "one of the best" between both leaders. "No one hid the disagreements between us. Rather, we focused on how to go forward" – plotting more regional violence, instability and chaos, he didn't explain.

Obama said he'll send unnamed high-level aides to Israel next month – plotting what both countries plan next.

Netanyahu lied, claiming he hasn't "given up...hope for peace" – claiming he "remain(s) committed to a vision of peace of two states for two peoples," while his combat troops and militarized police murder, brutalize, kidnap and terrorize Palestinians daily.

The New York Times ignored reality on the ground, reported nothing about what's ongoing, simply quoted and parroted back disingenuous statements by both leaders, instead of denouncing their demagogic duplicity.

Obama showed his longstanding contempt for Palestinian rights, saying "I want to be very clear that we condemn in the strongest terms Palestinian violence against innocent Israeli citizens. And I want to repeat once again, it is my strong belief that Israel has not just the right, but the obligation, to protect itself."

Reality on the ground is polar opposite. The Times support generous annual military aid, billions of US taxpayer dollars funding Israel's killing machine, including endless war on Palestine.

Netanyahu wants current aid exceeding $3 billion annually increased to $5 billion when the agreement between both countries expires in 2017.

The Times supports whatever amount Israel gets unconditionally – despite disingenuously saying it should be linked to a peace deal with Palestine, what Washington and Israel fundamentally oppose. Their claims otherwise ring hollow.

Obama and Netanyahu are partners in high crimes, warriors, not peacemakers, – an alliance for endless wars, instability, chaos and human misery.
