Former Pfizer Vice President and Chief Science Officer Dr. Mike Yeadon today related to plans to expand Green Passport implementation with a public plea in which he told America's Frontline Doctors: “This is Israel now, and the U.K. in just a few weeks.”

His message continues:

Those who think vaccine passports are good or at least ok, I'm addressing you.

If you were a vulnerable person and have been vaccinated, you're protected. You don't need to know others' immune status. Note, even if they've been vaccinated, that doesn't guarantee they can't carry a single virus particle and donate it to you. So it doesn't help you or make you safer to know everyone else has been vaccinated.

If you've declined vaccination, for example, because you're not at risk from this virus, noting younger people are at MORE risk from influenza than from COVID-19, you also don't need to know anyone else's immune status.

Vaccination protects those who need it. Vaccine passports protect nobody.

But vaxpass is useful to our overlords. It'll be the world's first common format database, operable anywhere from Bolton to Bogota, containing your unique digital ID and an editable health status flag (initially about vaccination status).

Who controls that database and any algorithm governing what it permits and denies has absolutely totalitarian control over every aspect of your life.

Imagine a future in which a valid Vaxpass is required to enter a sport ground or museum. Invalid Vaxpass, no entry.

Now imagine the rules are hardened up (they will be). Now you can't enter large shopping malls or hotels without a valid pass.

Further? Sure, why not. The algorithm is tweaked and now you cannot enter large supermarkets or any public transport.

A tyrannical step might be a Visa/MasterCard tweak that requires a valid Vaxpass BEFORE a terminal will open up for a purchase transaction.

Now you can't even buy a bottle of water. Or fuel. Or anything.

Ping! Your Vaxpass orders you to report for your top up vaccine. If you don't, your pass expires. Do you think you've got a choice?

Ping! You're reminded to bring your grandson in, too, as his mother hasn't. If you don't, your pass becomes invalid, as does the baby's mother's pass. Still think you've got a choice?

The fact that I can easily come up with examples must tell you at least that the potential for utterly totalitarian control of the entire population forever lies like a worm at the centre of this beyond-Orwellian future.

It's not speculative. We're told this system is about to happen. You'll be coerced to be vaccinated or you'll rapidly be marginalised.

Once you're vaccinated, the limited freedoms they allow you can be withdrawn at any moment.

Don't kid yourselves that "no one would be this evil". I refer you to numerous examples during the last century. There are plenty of evil people and the only difference here is SCALE and the irreversible nature of it.

Now you've seen what is so easy to do to take complete control of a whole society, you MUST object and find ways to prevent a vaccine passport system from coming into being. By any and all means necessary.

Finally, to those who say this is all a series of unfortunate and incompetent errors, please watch this documentary. Long before you get to the end, you'll realise, as I did with mounting horror, that this is absolutely not incompetence. It's rehearsed and exercises like this have been war gamed for years if not decades. It'll perhaps change your thoughts as to the origins of this mess and crimes.

But please, one thing: do not say you weren't warned.
