

Global Research Donation Drive

Global Research, April 07, 2023

Dear Readers,

We publish pieces by a wide variety of contributors including journalists, scholars, political analysts, historians, ex-military and intelligence personnel, scientists, and environmental experts among others. The publications are not selected in the interest of pushing a specific narrative but rather of breaking down divisions and building a dialogue, especially on peace and justice as we are living at a crossroads.

If you value our work, we strongly encourage you to make a contribution. Due to the effects of online censorship on our revenue, the financial support of our readers has become crucial to the continuation of our activities at this stage.

Keep Global Research online and accessible to all; click below to make a donation or become a member.
