

In Nine Democratic US Election Debates, Not a Single Question About Poverty

By Adam Johnson

Global Research, May 27, 2016

Fair

Region: USA

Theme: Poverty & Social Inequality,
Terrorism

In-depth Report: U.S. Elections

Over 45 million Americans live in poverty—but you wouldn't think potential leaders of the country are expected to know or care anything about this, listening to the questions asked by the elite journalists who moderated the Democratic debates this primary season.

A FAIR analysis of all nine democratic debates over the past seven months shows that not one question was asked about poverty. By contrast, 30 questions were asked about ISIS or terrorism (almost half of them concentrated in the December 19 debate, which took place days after the San Bernardino shootings) and 11 questions were asked Russia. Ten questions were asked about socialism or communism, all of which were directed at Bernie Sanders.

The candidates themselves have brought up poverty, either in their prepared remarks or in response to more abstract questions about the economy. Sanders brought up poverty in all but two debates, broaching the topic 11 times, or approximately 1.2 times per debate. Clinton brought up the issue three times in total, or on average once every three debates.

Location	Corporation Asking Debate Questions	Date	No. of Q's on poverty	No. of Q's on ISIS	No. of Q's on Russia	No. of Q's on "socialism"	Candidate mentions - poverty (Clinton)	Candidate mentions - poverty (Sanders)
Las Vegas, NV	Time Warner	Oct-13	0	0	1	4	0	2
Des Moines, IA	Viacom	Nov-14	0	4	0	0	0	2
Machester, NH	Disney	Dec-19	0	14	3	0	0	0
Charleston, SC	Comcast	Jan-17	0	6	2	1	0	0
Durham, NH	Comcast	Feb-4	0	3	3	0	0	2
Milwaukee, WI	N/A (PBS)	Feb-11	0	2	1	0	1	3
Flint, MI	Time Warner	Mar-6	0	0	0	1	2	2
Miami, FL	Disney/Univision	Mar-9	0	0	0	4	0	2
Brooklyn NY	Time Warner	Apr-14	0	1	1	0	0	2
Total			0	30	11	10	3	11
Avg. Per Debate			0.00	3.33	1.22	1.11	0.33	1.22

According to the 2014 census, 14.5 percent of Americans, or over 45 million people, live in poverty, up from 11.3 percent in 2000. Child poverty (which Sanders points out consistently) is especially troubling, with an estimated 16 million Americans under the age of 18 living below the poverty line.

A 2011 study attributed 133,000 deaths a year to poverty-related illnesses. Poverty has also been linked to diminished IQ in children—in the United States, but not in other wealthy countries—and has been shown to impact economic gains, overall health and quality of life. Put simply: Poverty touches large swaths of America, by any objective metric.

Americans are literally a million times more likely to live in poverty than to have been killed by “jihadi terror” since 9/11: The total figure for the latter is 45, or about 3 people a year. According to the Washington Post (11/23/15), the average American is more likely to be killed by home furniture than a terrorist.

Homeless man on National Mall (cc photo: Elvert Barnes); ABC's David Muir at December 19

While vague notions of “inequality” or “economic anxiety” were touched on occasionally, the issue of poverty and its effects remained entirely absent. No specific questions about poverty, its causes or possible federal solutions were asked by any of the moderators in any of the nine debates. If any of the candidates had a plan to ameliorate the plight of the poor, the moderators weren’t interested in hearing about it.

Eight out of the nine debates were hosted by a subsidiary or joint venture of one of four corporations: Comcast, Viacom, Disney and Time Warner (combined market value $383 billion).

The original source of this article is Fair
Copyright © Adam Johnson, Fair, 2016

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Adam Johnson

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca