In order to survive the plague of global capitalism and prosper, working people must join hands nationally and internationally.

As the indisputable producers, they must become the new owners of the means of production.

There is no other solution.

The global coronavirus crisis and the hasty peremptory lockdown proved by many folds that the world economy without the participation of labor (workers and farmers) and their allies is a dead economy. It also proved that the capitalists - who own the means of production - and their allies are useless parasites and incompetent "leaders".

The profit-driven capitalist system is a true source of all misery, poverty and wars which is destroying nature and civilization replicating a deadly virus. In order to survive this plague and prosper, working people as the indisputable producers must also become the new owners of the means of production.

There is no other solution.
