

Israel's "Operation Cast Lead" 1,400 Palestinians deaths, 5000 wounded

Palestinian Doctor Offers Message of Reconciliation After Loss of Three Daughters

By Canadians for Justice and Peace in the Middle East Global Research, June 06, 2010

Canadians for Justice and Peace in the Middle East 2 June 2010

Region: Middle East & North Africa
Theme: Crimes against Humanity
In-depth Report: PALESTINE

Toronto — On January 16th 2009, during Israel's 22-day offensive in Gaza, an Israeli tank fired at Dr. Izzeldin Abuelaish's apartment in the Jabalia refugee camp, killing three of his daughters and a niece. Over a year later, a still-grieving Dr. Abuelaish, has embarked on a cross-Canada tour to promote his new autobiography "I Shall Not Hate," and deliver a crucial message to Canadians about peace, tolerance and co-existence in the Middle East.

Israel began "Operation Cast Lead" on December 27th 2008, which left some 1,400 Palestinians – largely civilians – dead, and wounded more than 5,000. The Israeli Army tried to excuse its attack on the Abuelaish household by claiming its soldiers believed militants were operating from the residence. The Israeli government never issued an apology or any of the promised compensation as a result of their mistake.

In spite of his personal loss and suffering, Dr. Abuelaish vowed to use his own calamity as an opportunity to shed the light on Palestinian life under the Israeli occupation. "I believe everything happens for a reason, and that even my family's loss serves a purpose. The deaths of my daughters opened the Israelis' eyes to the suffering on the other side. I believe there is a better future for us because of what this tragedy has taught. The past is only there to learn from," says Abuelaish. "Let my daughters be the last to die," he adds.

Like many Canadians, Canadians for Justice and Peace in the Middle East (CJPME) welcomes Dr. Abuelaish message of dialogue and mutual understanding. "Dr. Abuelaish's story is indeed inspiring. Here is a man who has been through a tragedy like none other, and yet he is using his energy to create a space for a much needed discussion between the Palestinians and the Israelis," says Thomas Woodley, president of CJPME. "Our hope is that Dr. Abuelaish's story will expand Canadian understanding of the Israel/Palestine conflict, and encourage Canadian policymakers to work more assiduously for a just solution to the conflict. In this way, we may be able to prevent others from having to live through misfortunes like those of Dr. Abuelaish," adds Woodley.

Dr. Abuelaish is currently living in Toronto with his five remaining children, where he is an associate professor at the Dalla Lana School of Public Health at the University of Toronto.

For more information, please contact: Grace Batchoun

Canadians for Justice and Peace in the Middle East

Telephone: (514) 745-8491

CJPME Email – CJPME Website

Canadians for Justice and Peace in the Middle East (CJPME) is a non-profit and secular organization bringing together men and women of all backgrounds who labour to see justice and peace take root again in the Middle East. Its mission is to empower decision-makers to view all sides with fairness and to promote the equitable and sustainable development of the region.

The original source of this article is Canadians for Justice and Peace in the Middle East
Copyright © Canadians for Justice and Peace in the Middle East, Canadians for Justice and Peace in the Middle East, 2010

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Canadians for Justice and Peace in the Middle East

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca