

Killing Non-Jews in Israel: "The New Normal"

By Middle East Monitor Global Research, December 11, 2015 Middle East Monitor 10 December 2015 Region: Middle East & North Africa Theme: Crimes against Humanity, Law and Justice, Police State & Civil Rights In-depth Report: PALESTINE

A book by hardline Israeli rabbis justifying the murder of non-Jews will not have to face charges of inciting violence, the Jerusalem High Court said.

Israeli newspaper The Jerusalem Post reported Thursday that the court ruled there was "no basis" for the charges, upholding a 2012 decision by Israel's Attorney General to not pursue a criminal investigation.

The Torat Hamelech (The King's Torah) was published in 2009 and sparked controversy and a debate on free speech by arguing that Jewish law allowed, in some cases, for Jewish people to kill non-Jews without being to court.

According to The Jerusalem Post, the book states that anyone who opposes "our kingdom" or encourages attacks against them can be killed, as can children "if there is a good chance they will grow up to be like their evil parents."

The Attorney General's 2012 decision argued that the book was a religious study and not aimed at encouraging individuals to violence, despite concern within Israeli society that it could lead to violence against Palestinians.

Several Jewish groups objected the groups, as did senior Rabbis, including the Israel Movement for Reform and Progressive Judaism, which petitioned the High Court to question why there have been no investigation for racial incitement.

Israeli blog Reform Judaism, which supported the petition, wrote in 2012 that the book was "a manual on how Jewish law can justify hate and violence."

"When the Mufti of Jerusalem gave a sermon about killing Jews, the State opened a criminal investigation in less than a week," the blog wrote. "When rabbis widely distribute their manual for violence to the masses, the State remains silent."

The original source of this article is Middle East Monitor Copyright © Middle East Monitor, Middle East Monitor, 2015

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca