International Conference on the 75th anniversary of the Liberation of Italy and the End of World War II organised by the Italian Committee No War, No Nato and Global Research.

The great Italian journalist Giulietto Chiesa passed away a few hours after the realization of this Conference.

His last words (Panel 4 and Conclusion) focussed on Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Information, and Freedom for Julian Assange.

"It is essential to join all our forces together, which are significant, "not so small" but there is a fundamental flaw: that of being divided, unable to speak with a single voice. We need the means and the instrument to speak to the millions of citizens who want to know."

His last words were confirmed by the fact that, immediately after the streaming, the online conference was "obscured" because the following content had been identified by the so-called YouTube community as "inappropriate or offensive to some audiences." That's what is commonly referred to as Censorship.
