

NewsGuard and US Government Sued by Consortium News. Musk Slams 'Scam'

By Zero Hedge

Region: USA

Global Research, October 25, 2023

Theme: Intelligence, Law and Justice,

Media Disinformation

Zero Hedge 24 October 2023

All Global Research articles can be read in 51 languages by activating the Translate Website button below the author's name.

To receive Global Research's Daily Newsletter (selected articles), click here.

Click the share button above to email/forward this article to your friends and colleagues. Follow us on Instagram and Twitter and subscribe to our Telegram Channel. Feel free to repost and share widely Global Research articles.

NewsGuard, a company which claims to rate media outlets' level of 'trustworthiness' and therefore has a meaningful influence over ad revenue, has been sued along with the Biden administration by Consortium News, which also named the Pentagon's Cyber Command for "contracting with NewsGuard to identify, report and abridge the speech of American media organizations that dissent from U.S. official positions on foreign policy."

According to the complaint, NewsGuard is "acting jointly or in concert with the United States to coerce news organizations to alter viewpoints" regarding Ukraine, Russia and Syria, and has impsed a form of "censorship and repression of views" that diverge from US policies and those of its allies, the complaint says.

Consortium also notes that NewsGuard has branded the entirety of Consortium News' 20,000+ articles as 'unreliable' based on just six examples they took issue with (which is the exact same thing they do with ZeroHedge and other independent media).

NewsGuard uses its software to tag targeted news sites, including all 20,000+ Consortium News articles an videos published since 1995, with warnings to "proceed with caution," telling NewsGuard subscribers that Consortium News produces "disinformation," "false content" and is an "anti-U.S." media organization, even though NewsGuard only took issue with a total of six CN articles and none of its videos.

The complaint seeks a permanent injunction declaring the joint program unconstitutional; barring the government and NewsGuard from continuing such practices and more than $13 million in damages for defamation and civil rights violations. -Consortium News founder Jimmy Wales is an adviser to NewsGuard, and that the nanny organization was "knee deep in a plot to get [governments] to bankrupt alternative news. NewsGuard worked [with the] EU on new disinformation code. Its biz model has 'disinformation compliance' services [with the] censorship laws it promotes."

Last week former Trump administration official Mike Benz noted on X that Wikipedia co-

Elon, for your peripheral vision, Jimmy Wales advises NewsGuard, which is knee deep in a plot to get gov'ts to bankrupt alternative news.

NewsGuard worked w/ EU on new disinformation code. Its biz model has "disinformation compliance" services w/ censorship laws it promotes. https://t.co/NNiciemxu0 pic.twitter.com/QDz1a2qFVZ

Mike Benz (@MikeBenzCyber) October 19, 2023

Elon, there is no way EU censorship proponents can deny it. NewsGuard bragged about it. EU officers bragged about it. They had formal partnership together.

All they can do now is hold their nose & hope their own voters never learn what's been going on. pic.twitter.com/gvcWAOtpdq

— Mike Benz (@MikeBenzCyber) October 19, 2023

In another X thread, Elon Musk called Newsguard a "scam" after they gave political commentator Tim Pool a strike "because we ran 5 stories out of nearly 5,000 that quoted [former President Donald] Trump."

What a scam!

"Newsguard" should be disbanded immediately.

- Elon Musk (@elonmusk) October 19, 2023

Acording to Uncover DC, NewsGuard has contracts with the DoD, WHO, Pfizer, Microsoft & AFT.

Co-CEOs Steven Brill and Gordon Crovitz claim it is the "librarian for the internet." Set up specifically to rate online journalistic integrity, Brill states NewsGuard provides services that "explain to people something about the reliability and trustworthiness and background of those who are feeding them the news." Eric Effron is the organization's Editorial Director.

Brill is a Yale graduate and lawyer who has authored multiple best-selling books and was, among other things, CEO of Verified Identity Pass, Inc., the first U.S. biometric Voluntary Credentialing Program that went bankrupt in 2009. It was the parent company of CLEAR which went back online in 2010 and then went public in 2021.

According to MintPressNews, "Crovitz held a number of positions at Dow Jones and the Wall Street Journal, eventually becoming executive vice president of the former and the publisher of the latter before both were sold to Rupert Murdoch's News Corp in 2007. He is also a board member of Business Insider, which has received over $30 million from Washington Post owner Jeff Bezos in recent years."

Crovitz's alliances might account for the organization's favorable 100 ratings for WSJ and the Washington Post. He is also a contributor "to books published by the American Enterprise Institute and Heritage Foundation," which are also favorably rated by NewsGuard.

* * *

NewsGuard's directors, advisors, and investors are an interesting cast of characters. One of the investors, Publicis Groupe, is "the third largest communications group in the world." Publicic allegedly has "shadowy ties to Saudi Arabia." Pfizer and Bayer/Monsanto are two of its top clients. Ironically, many of the advisors/directors are former U.S. government officials, entertainment moguls, and journalists "associated with agencies known for producing false news."

Among the advisors is Michael Hayden, former Director of the NSA and CIA, who was "the architect of George W. Bush's secret domestic spying program." Tom Ridge was the first Office of Homeland Security Director following 9/11. Richard Stengel "is a former senior official in Obama's state department who once described his role as being that of 'chief propagandist.'"

Leftist "NewsGuard" is Microsoft partner. https://t.co/gfPwJNy69E

— Tom Fitton (@TomFitton) February 14, 2023

And as the Epoch Times noted in August, NewsGuard presents itself as objective and nonpartisan. Its ratings, the company says, measure media quality on nine criteria, including transparency of authorship and ownership and adherence to standard editorial practice, such as issuing corrections and labeling opinion pieces. In practice, however, most of the score boils down to whether the media present content that, in NewsGuard's opinion, is truthful.

The first criterion specifically looks at whether the target repeatedly publishes false claims. Another examines whether it publishes news "responsibly." But failing the first one means failing the second one, NewsGuard explains on its website. Yet another criterion is whether the target uses accurate headlines.

Again, if the headline says something NewsGuard considers to be untrue, that counts as a failure. Another criterion looks for a policy of regularly correcting errors—or what NewsGuard considers to be errors. Together, these four criteria add up to more than 60 points of the 100-point score.

Even if NewsGuard can't find anything to dispute, it can still dock points if the target doesn't sufficiently represent opinions the company would like to see.

Such content providers "egregiously cherry pick facts or stories to advance opinions," it argues.

Meanwhile, at least 60 points are needed for NewsGuard to issue its "credible" rating.

This methodology becomes particularly problematic when NewsGuard itself is wrong on the facts. For example, during the height of the COVID-19 pandemic, the company considered false the notion that the SARS-CoV-2 virus was leaked from a lab in Wuhan, China. If a news outlet with a perfect score responsibly reported on the extensive circumstantial evidence indicating a lab leak, it ran the risk of NewsGuard decimating its score and falsely labelling it an "unreliable" source that "severely violates basic journalistic standards."

The COVID-19 origins issue was a rare case in which NewsGuard eventually issued a correction, though it only went as far as saying that the lab leak hypothesis couldn't be completely ruled out.

*

Note to readers: Please click the share button above. Follow us on Instagram and Twitter and subscribe to our Telegram Channel. Feel free to repost and share widely Global Research articles.

Featured image is from ZH

The original source of this article is Zero Hedge Copyright © Zero Hedge, Zero Hedge, 2023

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Zero Hedge

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca