

North Korea Threatens America. They're Coming, They're Going to Blow Us Up

"And you know, we have this mad guy [Kim Jong-un], I guess he's mad, either he's mad or he's a genius, one or the other, but he's actually more unstable, even than his father, ..."
(Donald Trump, August 2016 during election campaign)

What was indelible about it [the Korean War of 1950-53] was the extraordinary destructiveness of the United States' air campaigns against North Korea, from the widespread and continuous use of firebombing (mainly with napalm), to threats to use nuclear and chemical weapons, and the destruction of huge North Korean dams in the final stages of the war. (Bruce Cumings)

Trump believes that Kim Jong-un is crazy. Take him out.

The U.S. media concurs: the DPRK is a threat to US national security requiring a preemptive first strike THAAD missile attack in the name of "self defense".

Who's crazy? Kim or Trump? Never mind if it unleashes war with China and Russia.

Top source: Trump believes North Korea is greatest threat

Trump's concern over North Korea is in part fueled by his belief that North Korea's leader Kim Jong Un "may be crazy," the official said.

The question for Trump, though, has been, "Is he crazy or is he smart and strategic?" the official said, relaying Trump's thinking.

According to the Heritage Foundation:

"The rogue regime in North Korea poses one of the most dangerous threats to U.S. national security interests. Pyongyang presents a multifaceted military threat to peace and stability in Asia as well as a global proliferation risk.

Pyongyang responds by saying that the US (including 29,000 troops stationed in South Korea) constitutes a threat to the DPRK's national security, and they must defend themselves.

America, a threat to their national security?

They have no right to self defense.

The North Koreans are absolutely nuts.

Or are they?

General Curtis LeMay who coordinated the bombing raids against North Korea during the Korean War (1950-53) acknowledged that:

We went over there and fought the war and eventually burned down every town in North Korea anyway, anyway or another, and some in South Korea too.... Over a period of three years or so, we killed off — what — twenty percent of the population of Korea as direct casualties of war, or from starvation and exposure? Strategic Air Warfare: An Interview with Generals (1988)

But it was all for a good cause, killing to preserve democracy.

The territories North of the thirty-eighth parallel were subjected to extensive carpet bombing and fire-bombing using napalm, which resulted in the destruction of seventy-eight cities and thousands of villages. As a result, almost every substantial building in North Korea was destroyed.

According to U.S. Major General William F. Dean:

"most of the North Korean cities and villages he saw were either rubble or snow-covered wastelands".

According to award winning author and Vietnam war veteran Brian Willson:

"It is now believed that the population north of the imposed thirty-eighth Parallel lost nearly a third its population of eight to nine million people during the thirty-seven-month-long "hot" war, 1950-53, perhaps an unprecedented percentage of mortality suffered by one nation due to the belligerence of another."

Forget about crazy rogue leaders.

Put yourself in the shoes of North Koreans, they're fellow human beings.

Every single family in North Korea has lost a loved one during the Korean war. Ask them: who is the threat to "Their National Security". And its not over. The DPRK has been threatened with a US nuclear attack for more than sixty years.

Imagine what would happen if a foreign power had attacked America, all major cities had been destroyed and 20 percent of the US population killed. How would you feel?

That's what happened to North Korea.

Spread American democracy. Kill the Communists.

Who's the threat to Global Security, North Korea or the United States?

Trump is just as crazy as Kim Jong-un.

Moreover he doesn't have an understanding of 20th Century history, nor is he able to comprehend the unspoken consequences of a first strike US led nuclear attack.

The World is at a dangerous crossroads. The architects of US foreign policy are insane.

In the words of Stephen Lendman, Trump wants to ignite Korean War 2.0, which inevitably would lead to military escalation beyond the Korean peninsula.

This is not The Trump Tower in New York, it's Pyongyang. Is this what Trump wants to destroy? Again?

A chapter entitled

The Threat of Nuclear War, North Korea or the United States?

is contained in Michel Chossudovsky's book entitled The Globalization of War, America's Long War against Humanity

"While the Western media portrays North Korea's nuclear weapons program as a threat to Global Security, it fails to acknowledge that the U.S. has been threatening North Korea with a nuclear attack for more than half a century.

Unknown to the broader public, the U.S. had envisaged the use of nuclear weapons against North Korea at the very outset of the Korean War in 1950. In the immediate wake of the war, the U.S. deployed nuclear weapons in South Korea for use on a pre-emptive basis against the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) in violation of the July 1953 Armistice Agreement."

America's hegemonic project in the post 9/11 era is the "Globalization of War" whereby the U.S.-NATO military machine —coupled with covert intelligence operations, economic sanctions and the thrust of "regime change"— is deployed in all major regions of the world. The threat of pre-emptive nuclear war is also used to black-mail countries into submission.

This "Long War against Humanity" is carried out at the height of the most serious economic crisis in modern history.

It is intimately related to a process of global financial restructuring, which has resulted in the collapse of national economies and the impoverishment of large sectors of the World population.

The ultimate objective is World conquest under the cloak of "human rights" and "Western democracy".

REVIEWS:

"Professor Michel Chossudovsky is the most realistic of all foreign policy commentators. He is a model of integrity in analysis, his book provides an honest appraisal of the extreme danger that U.S. hegemonic neoconservatism poses to life on earth."

Dr. Paul Craig Roberts, former Assistant Secretary of the U.S. Treasury

"“The Globalization of War” comprises war on two fronts: those countries that can either be “bought” or destabilized. In other cases, insurrection, riots and wars are used to solicit U.S. military intervention. Michel Chossudovsky’s book is a must read for anyone who prefers peace and hope to perpetual war, death, dislocation and despair.”

Hon. Paul Hellyer, former Canadian Minister of National Defence

"Michel Chossudovsky describes globalization as a hegemonic weapon that empowers the financial elites and enslaves 99 percent of the world's population.

"The Globalization of War" is diplomatic dynamite – and the fuse is burning rapidly."

Michael Carmichael, President, the Planetary Movement
