

Release of Student Information to Military Recruiters

Law will protect student privacy in public schools and parental decision-making rights

By Patrick Elder

Global Research, April 19, 2010

After Downing Street 13 April 2010

Region: USA

Theme: Law and Justice

Annapolis, MD – Maryland Governor Martin O'Malley signed a measure into law today that prohibits the automatic release of student information to military recruiters gathered as a result of the administration of a military test in the state's high schools. A cross section of Maryland groups, including the Maryland Coalition to Protect Student Privacy, the Maryland NAACP, MD-PTA, the ACLU-MD, Progressive Maryland, and Peace Action Montgomery lobbied for the passage of the bill.

The law (HB 176/SB778) requires that each public school that administers the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery (ASVAB) shall choose "Option 8" as the reporting option for military recruiter contact to prohibit the general release of any student information to military recruiters. The law will ensure that the decision to share test results and accompanying private information with military recruiters rests solely in the hands of students and their parents. Maryland is the first state to pass such a law.

"This law closes a loophole in the 'opt-out' legislation passed overwhelmingly by the Maryland General Assembly in 2008, which allowed parents to opt out of releasing a student's name, address, and phone number to military recruiters but did not cover the release of information gathered as a result of ASVAB testing," explained Del. Sheila Hixson, (D-20), lead sponsor of the legislation and Chair of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Sen. Jamie Raskin, (D-20), a constitutional law professor at American University, was the Senate's lead sponsor. Raskin hailed the bill's passage as a "big victory" that vindicates the "students' right to privacy of personal information and the family's right to decision making."

"I was pleased to work with so many civil liberties, civil rights, parent/teacher, and peace groups in this important effort," Raskin added.

In 2007, the last year for which such data are available, 91% of the 6,816 students in 156 public schools across Maryland who took the ASVAB had their results forwarded to Military Recruiting Services by the U.S. Military Entrance Processing Command (which administers the test) because the schools failed to select Option 8. Students taking the ASVAB without having Option 8 selected relinquish social security numbers, ethnicity, detailed career plans, demographic information, and three hours of test results to recruiters, often without parental knowledge or consent. Several schools schedule ASVAB testing for entire classes.

Under the new law, individuals who wish to share their ASVAB results with recruiters may do so themselves (this is an on-the-spot transaction when visiting a recruitment office). This policy is currently working satisfactorily in several Maryland school systems.

The original source of this article is After Downing Street
Copyright © Patrick Elder, After Downing Street, 2010

---

**Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page**

**Become a Member of Global Research**

Articles by: Patrick Elder

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca

www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca