

Russia invests in Franco-German Aerospace Conglomerate

By Global Research

Global Research, February 25, 2007

Moscow Times 25 February 2007

Region: Russia and FSU

Theme: Militarization and WMD

Thursday, February 22, 2007. Page 4.

Russia Seeking Bigger Stake in EADS

By Anna Smolchenko

President Vladimir Putin said Wednesday that Russia was interested in increasing its stake in European Aeronautic Defense and Space Company, or EADS.

During a meeting with French Defense Minister Michele Alliot-Marie and Foreign Minister Philippe Douste-Blazy, Putin said that if the two sides failed to reach an agreement, Russian companies could buy up shares on the open market.

"We've already said the purchase of EADS shares by one of our banks is not a step toward a hostile takeover," Putin said. "We are ready for constructive cooperation."

Last year, state-owned Vneshtorgbank amassed a 5 percent stake in Airbus parent EADS. The Kremlin has indicated its desire to increase that stake on several occasions, and has pushed for a seat on the company's board of directors.

Earlier in the day, Alliot-Marie and Douste-Blazy met with their Russian counterparts, Defense Minister Anatoly Serdyukov and Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov, within the framework of the Russian-French Security Cooperation Council.

The French officials did not respond directly to Putin's remarks, but said France was interested in further cooperation.

"We are very interested in heavy-duty helicopters. We are also interested in unmanned reconnaissance aircraft," Alliot-Marie said. "We are, of course, interested in the new generation of aircraft and our researchers could work together."

Dousté-Blazy said France also hoped to acquire a fleet of Russian-made aircraft for fighting forest fires.

New First Deputy Prime Minister Sergei Ivanov, who also attended the meeting, said Russia and France could cooperate in the areas of space technology, aviation and IT.

Dousté-Blazy praised several points made by Putin in his Munich speech earlier this month.

“We very much liked your approach on the risk associated with migration,” he said.

Putin’s views on immigration and health care are “very close to those of our president, Jacques Chirac,” Douste-Blazy said.

Putin said Chirac would visit Moscow next month, shortly before he is scheduled to leave office, to discuss energy and other issues.

Ruslan Pukhov, director of the Moscow-based Center for Analysis of Strategies and Technologies, said that despite the bullish talk Wednesday, the weapons trade and cooperation between France and Russia would make only modest gains in the next five to six years.

Speaking to reporters earlier Wednesday, Lavrov and the French officials called for unity in the standoff with Iran over its nuclear program, but also stressed that the international community should remain open to dialogue with Iran, The Associated Press reported.

Staff Writer Anatoly Medetsky contributed to this report.

The original source of this article is Moscow Times
Copyright © Global Research, Moscow Times, 2007

---

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Global Research

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca
www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.
For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca