Global Research, April 20, 2017

The world is entering a new era, and information is being disseminated at an incredible speed, from increasingly dubious and agglomerated sources. Global Research needs the help of readers like you to spread the word and champion our mission.

If Global Research has in any way helped shape your worldview, we ask you to help us maintain and increase our reach far and wide, so that the stories the mainstream media neglect, often intentionally, can come to light and help educate and form other people's worldview too.

In doing so, you can lead the way and contribute to the discussions on global affairs that are taking place all around us. We want you to help us ask questions, drive debate, and participate in building information based on true knowledge.

We'd like you to share the articles we publish on GlobalResearch.ca and forward our newsletter emails to your peers, colleagues, and friends.

You can go even further by connecting and engaging with your current network, by phone, email, Facebook, Twitter, your blog, or any other social media.

Start today by sharing these links with your network:

Ask questions. Use insights. Make connections. Share knowledge.
