Regular readers of Activist Post are probably well aware that we have posted many articles highlighting the insidious nature of globalist plans for depopulation. To our knowledge, we haven't presented any that reflect the information offered below.

Kevin Galalae has produced a well-written and thorough 100+ page historical account of the policies and methods of depopulation in various countries around the world. It is clearly his view that the covert means by which this is taking place is an affront to humanity. We absolutely agree.

We would be remiss not to mention, however, that Activist Post cannot agree with Kevin's central tenet that overpopulation is a catastrophic certainty where there is no other option left but to embrace governmental solutions – even if it's conducted in the most humane and open way possible. Simply because it is transparent does not mean it's the correct path.

Rather, we believe that without the imposition of central planners humanity likely wouldn't have reached its current level of "scarcity." New technology (and especially the eradication of destructive corporate agriculture which impedes food production) holds much more promise toward humanity's prosperity – even at increased population levels – than does more central planning and legislation. Nevertheless, we cede that this is an enormously complex issue, and one that demands the engagement of every one of us, otherwise we will be left to live with the decisions of others rather than our own individual self-determination. In that spirit, and in the spirit of information and debate, we leave it to the reader to determine the best path forward based on the many statistics Kevin provides in his book linked below. We look forward to your comments.

Since the end of the Second World War and with the formation of the United Nations in 1945, international peace and stability have been maintained by controlling population growth. Unbeknown to the masses, governments have used covert methods to limit births in developed and underdeveloped countries alike and to accelerate deaths in Africa and a few critically poor and overpopulated areas elsewhere.

Births have been prevented by interfering with the reproductive system so as to lower human fertility, while deaths have been promoted by weakening the immune system so as to increase morbidity and mortality.

The methods used by every country to control population growth have been dictated by the level of development and the existing infrastructure as much as by political will or lack thereof and have either been imposed by force and deception from the outside or adopted willingly by the governing, military and scientific elites of nation states that have relied on the moral, technical and monetary assistance of the United Nations, its agencies, and the greater international community.

Regardless of the methods used to control population and whether they are imposed or self-imposed, strict secrecy and deception have been necessary to prevent the masses from discovering the bitter truth that for the past 68 years they have been the object of a silent and global offensive, a campaign of attrition that has turned the basic elements of life into weapons of mass infertility and selective death.

Without our knowledge or consent, governments the world over have subverted our reproductive freedom and ability to procreate to achieve ambitious and necessary demographic objectives and in the process have committed the most odious and wide-sweeping crimes in human history to save mankind from even greater evils: nuclear annihilation, mass starvation, and environmental devastation.

The birth of nearly two billion people has been prevented and the death of half a billion hurried. While these goals have been intentional, the architects of the Global Depopulation Policy have unintentionally undermined the genetic and intellectual endowment of the human species and have set back eons of natural selection. Their intentions have never been malevolent, but the unintended results of their actions are frightening.

It is the task of this book to reveal this silent offensive's secret methods and insidious means, which make up the world's greatest con, so that an awakening to the dire realities we face will prompt each and every human being on earth to demand a share of the responsibility and population control can be legislated across the globe, with little or no resistance, for the next three generations or until our numbers are sufficiently low to allow humanity to live in balance with nature and at peace with itself.

This is the only way our children will have a future and a life of dignity.
