

Covid-19 and the “Greater Economic Depression” Exceeding the 1930s: Unemployment Armageddon

By Stephen Lendman

Global Research, August 09, 2020

Region: USA

Theme: Global Economy

The COVID-19 crisis at a time of deteriorating economic conditions caused what in hindsight may be known as a Greater Depression — exceeding the worst of the 1930s.

For 20 straight weeks, new claims for unemployment insurance exceeded one million.

Prior to March, the highest ever weekly total was 695,000. What’s unfolding in real time in the US is unprecedented and then some.

The Labor Department’s reported 1.2 million new filings was fake news like earlier weekly reports.

According to the Economic Policy Institute (EPI), 1.6 million US workers applied for unemployment benefits in the last week — not seasonally adjusted.

The number includes 984,000 who applied for state unemployment benefits — another 656,000 seeking Pandemic Unemployment Assistance (PUA).

In the past 20 weeks, a previously unimaginable 55 million Americans filed initial claims for unemployment benefits.

Nearly one-third of US working-age Americans currently have no jobs.

Over 30% of laid off US workers who regained employment were furloughed again because of Depression-level economic conditions at a time of zero federal jobs creation programs.

While only Cassandra excelled at predicting future events, what’s going on suggests harder than ever hard times may worsen ahead before improving at an unknown future time.

Federally approved unemployment insurance (UI) benefits of $600 weekly to eligible recipients expired at end of July.

Republicans want benefits slashed to $200 weekly, along with no financial aid to cash-strapped states, no funds for emergency workplace health and safety protections, nothing to prevent landlords from evicting jobless tenants with no ability to pay rent.

Through Thursday, Republicans and Dems failed to agree on a package of vital benefits for unemployed Americans.

According to White House chief of staff Mark Meadows, “(w)e’re still a considerable amount apart.”

Dems expressed “disappoint(ment)” over failure to resolve differences with Republicans.

Treasury Secretary Mnuchin said if stalemated talks continue, Trump will act unilaterally by executive order that surely will fall far short of what’s needed by a president who time and again showed indifference toward public health and welfare — serving privileged interests exclusively throughout his tenure.

Dems said they’ll legally challenge unilateral action by Trump to resolve major differences if he takes this step.

Both sides blame each other for impasse on major issues at a time of unprecedented US unemployment armageddon when vital aid to the needy is essential without delay.

For the past week, jobless Americans got no UI.

EPI called slashing benefits from $600 to $200 weekly, as Senate Republicans demand, “not just cruel, it’s terrible economics,” adding:

“These benefits are supporting a huge amount of spending by people who would otherwise have to cut back dramatically.”

“The spending made possible by the $400 that the Senate wants to cut is supporting 3.4 million jobs.”

“If you cut the $400, you cut those jobs.”

If (now expired) benefits are cut to $400 weekly, $1.7 million jobs will be lost.

May and June employment gains “reversed. Now is not the time to cut benefits that are supporting jobs,” EPI stressed.

GOP leadership claims that UI benefits of $600 disincentivise unemployed Americans from returning to work have no merit.

EPI called the claim “massively overblown,” adding:

“(R)igorous empirical studies show that any theoretical disincentive effect has been so minor that it cannot even be detected.”

Data show that over two-thirds of UI recipients who returned to work in May and June earned more from unemployment benefits than on-the-job pay.

Slashing benefits when most needed amounts to cruel and unusual punishment, an 8th Amendment breach.

In his second (January 1937) inaugural address to the nation, Franklin Roosevelt said the following:

“I see tens of millions of its citizens—a substantial part of its whole population—who at this very moment are denied the greater part of what the very lowest standards of today call the necessities of life.”

“I see millions of families trying to live on incomes so meager that the pall of family disaster hangs over them day by day.”

“I see millions whose daily lives in city and on farm continue under conditions labeled indecent by a so-called polite society half a century ago.”

“I see millions denied education, recreation, and the opportunity to better their lot and the lot of their children.”

“I see millions lacking the means to buy the products of farm and factory and by their poverty denying work and productiveness to many other millions.”

“I see one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished.”

The state of the nation today for most Americans is more dire than during the 1930s.

No FDR era alphabet soup of jobs creation programs exists to put Americans back to work, none planned by Republicans or Dems.

Will things change for the better if Biden succeeds Trump in January and if Dems control both houses of Congress?

No evidence suggests it other than perhaps some tinkering around the edges when massive relief and jobs creation programs are vitally needed to turn things around — at a time of unprecedented economic and unemployment armageddon.

What’s going on is likely to be protracted and painful for countless millions of Americans — what I call the hardest of hard times in a nation serving privileged interests exclusively, uncaring about the vast majority of ordinary people.

*

Note to readers: please click the share buttons below. Forward this article to your email lists. Crosspost on your blog site, internet forums. etc.

Award-winning author Stephen Lendman lives in Chicago. He can be reached at lendmanstephen@sbcglobal.net. He is a Research Associate of the Centre for Research on Globalization (CRG)

His new book as editor and contributor is titled “Flashpoint in Ukraine: US Drive for Hegemony Risks WW III.”

<http://www.claritypress.com/LendmanIII.html>

Visit his blog site at sjlendman.blogspot.com.

The original source of this article is Global Research
Copyright © Stephen Lendman, Global Research, 2020

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Stephen Lendman

About the author:

Stephen Lendman lives in Chicago. He can be reached at lendmanstephen@sbcglobal.net. His new book as editor and contributor is titled "Flashpoint in Ukraine: US Drive for Hegemony Risks WW III."

<http://www.claritypress.com/LendmanIII.html> Visit his blog site at sjlendman.blogspot.com. Listen to cutting-edge discussions with distinguished guests on the Progressive Radio News Hour on the Progressive Radio Network. It airs three times weekly: live on Sundays at 1PM Central time plus two prerecorded archived programs.

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca

www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca