Parents who don't vaccinate their children are ignorantly letting celebrities like Jenny McCarthy dictate their medical decisions.

"Anti-vaxxers" reject sound science when they forego the CDC's official vaccination schedule, which has been proven to save lives.

The reason why childhood illnesses are making a comeback is because of unvaccinated populations which are a threat to the vaccinated and society at large.

Parents who reject vaccinations for any other reason besides a medical diagnosis should be thrown in prison and have their children taken away by Child Protective Services.

As a doctor, I refuse to treat your unvaccinated children, and any doctor who opposes vaccinations should have his medical license taken away.

This is just a small sampling of the many outlandish assaults taking place within the mainstream media right now against anyone who opposes or even questions vaccines. The true colors of these corporate-controlled propaganda entities are on full display as every type of false accusation, pseudoscientific conjecture and overblown scare tactic in the book is being employed in an effort to maintain the vaccine status quo.

Everywhere you look, media pundits, industry-backed doctors, politicians and public health authorities are blaming the unvaccinated for spreading disease to the vaccinated. These mouthpieces are constantly regurgitating lies on television and in print about vaccines only being effective if everybody gets them, for instance, or diseases that were once eradicated by vaccines making a resurgence because some people choose not to vaccinate.

Militant vaccine fanatics call for parents of unvaccinated to be jailed, have their children taken away by government

The badgering has gotten so bad, in some cases, that a few of the more deranged-leaning control freaks in positions of power and influence have called for parents to be jailed for not vaccinating their children, and for doctors who oppose vaccines to lose their licenses. Even though vaccines are still privately owned medical interventions that come with serious side effects, including death, there are some who believe that everyone should be forced to get them.

A few brave physicians like Dr. Jack Wolfson, Dr. Sherri Tenpenny and Dr. Lee Hieb have spoken out publicly in defense of medical freedom, and against these Orwellian proposals that would force an unproven medical treatment on the entire population. But as a punishment for their courage, these few lone voices in the wilderness are being harassed and even threatened with losing their licenses over expressing free thought on the matter.

Phoenix-based integrative cardiologist Dr. Jack Wolfson, after appearing on cable television news recently to denounce vaccinations, landed himself as the subject of an investigation by the Arizona Medical Board. According to media reports, the licensing authority says it suddenly received numerous complaints about Dr. Wolfson's practice, an obvious intimidation tactic that is now being paraded across news headlines in an effort to tarnish this doctor's reputation — and warn others against speaking out against vaccines.

Osteopath Dr. Sherri Tenpenny, another outspoken advocate of vaccine choice, was practically run out of Australia after pro-vaccine activists found out she had been asked to speak about vaccines as part of a national speaking tour. Vitriolic "skeptics" not only made sure that Dr. Tenpenny didn't get her visa, but they also helped fuel a campaign of violent threats that spurred the event's organizers to disallow Dr. Tenpenny's participation.

"We have reached a point where we can no longer guarantee the safety of those attending the seminar," wrote the group that organized the event on its Facebook page, according to The Guardian. "The anti-free-speech terrorists have voiced bomb threats and have threatened violence against venue owners and their families."

Without informed consent, and the freedom to accept or reject medical treatment, there is no ethics or morality in medicine

What we are now witnessing with all this is an escalating witch hunt similar to what occurred in Nazi Germany prior to the Holocaust. Dissenters of the government-medical-military-industrial complex are right now being branded, slandered, threatened and coerced into toeing the party line — and those who refuse to fall in line with the agenda face the very real threat of losing their careers, their children and even their lives.

The swelling medical dictatorship in the U.S. has taken on such an intense level of aggression against free thought that even the simple act of questioning vaccines is now considered a crime worthy of imprisonment. What these so-called physicians who endorse such persecution fail to recognize, though, is that the foundation of medical ethics rests on an individual's freedom to accept or reject medical treatment based on informed consent.

"Medical ethics are clear: No one should be forced to undergo a medical treatment without informed consent and without their agreement to the treatment," wrote Dr. Hieb in a recent editorial published by WND.com.

"We condemn the forced sterilization of the '20s and '30s, the Tuskegee medical experiments infecting black inmates and the Nazi medicine that included involuntary 'Euthanasia,' experimentation and sterilization. How can we force vaccination without consent? Vaccination is a medical treatment with risks including death. It is totally antithetical to all ethics in medicine to mandate that risk to others."
